

When I first walked into Aspen Rehab, I was impressed with the warm, friendly atmosphere in this bright, cheery, modern facility. After only one visit, everyone greeted me by name, even those not treating me. My husband and I were planning a vacation to Yellowstone National Park, and I wanted to be able to do a lot of walking without pain. When I started treatment, I could not walk without quite a bit of pain and limping. After a couple of weeks, I was markedly improved; and by the time treatment ended and we took our trip, I was able to do everything I wanted to do, including playing tennis, without pain.

I was also treated for a strange pain in my right elbow which resolved completely. I had suffered from this pain for many months but had never told my doctor.

I can't say enough about Aspen Rehab and the people who work there. They are extremely caring and friendly, yet completely professional. You feel that they want you to meet your goals just as much as you do. This is not your typical medical facility. It is a happy place, and you will be struck by all the smiles and laughing - by both patients and providers. My experiences at Aspen Rehab have taught me that it is not necessary to live with pain. There is qualified help, and it can be found at Aspen Rehab.
